Yes, I want to shock you into reading and learning from this report.

I remember when pagers came out. I hated them. Being "chained to work" wherever you go.

Now, many people spend $100 a month ($1,200 a year) to be voluntarily chained to others, by way of a cell phone.

We are training our children to be very dependent.

"Call if you have a problem" instead of trying to "figure it out yourself".

We called that "Growing UP".

GPS lets us get precisely to our destination without seeing the beauty along the way. Getting lost can be fun, and educational. You can find new and exciting places.

Many people CANNOT even get back where they came from, if the GPS were to break. They were not paying attention to the roads or surroundings, as they had a GPS "doing it for them"

Children no longer look out the car windows for the cows, trees, rivers, and unique buildings while traveling, and where some of life's greatest moments were found in days gone by.

Instead, they are watching the same videos they could see at home. They listen to a portable music device, while their parents are on cell phones, instead of the dreadful, yet entertaining, family sing-a-longs, or just plain talking to one another, and enjoying life.

Nope. They have to check their status and reveal details of their lives they later they will regret revealing to online "friends".

I have had caller ID since I first used a telephone in the 50's. It went something like this: "Hello. Who's calling please?"

Music videos (created to sell albums) changed the way you remember music. It used to be you remembered something good or bad, because you were doing something when you heard the song. Now video puts an image in your head, so you don't actually have to think about your own life and experiences. The images are conveniently packaged for you.

MTV was created as MUSIC TeleVision. That's what it means! Now there is very little music on MTV.

Kids first learned risk management by climbing up stairs or riding a bike.

Now they are supposed to be dressed like the Michelin Man. We want there to be no risk. Guess what? Life don't work that way.

Bass Ackwards

There are claims that second-hand smoke kills more people than smoking does. So, should I smoke, if only to protect myself?

Bass Ackwards

We shower, get all dressed up, and look our best for people with whom we work, (and may not even like) but then get "comfy" for those who we truly love and care about.

Bass Ackwards

Cops set up "safety checkpoints" or "sobriety checkpoints" to have the criminals come to them, instead of going out and preventing crime. So what if many people's civil rights are decimated in the process?

And now they have more "no lights" or "low profile lights" on Police cars, and they "hide" along the highways (sometimes in specially constructed spots just for that purpose), like a thief in a doorway. Police used to be there to "serve and protect" Now it is to "catch and make money".

Bullying is bad, but then, they (police departments) specifically hire bullies to wear a badge and a gun!

And we glorify bullying on TV in shows about singing, cooking, and many more.

Bass Ackwards

Speaking of TV. What the hell is up with "REALITY TV"
To be true REALITY TV, it would have to show a lazy family just sitting around mindlessly watching.....TV!

That's reality, but no one would watch.

Public servants used to be public servants. They were paid for by tax dollars and were there to serve the public. Now they are called "leaders" and "heroes". With pay and benefits to match. And we wonder why we are broke. You can't pay your maid more than you make, or you too will go broke.

(not My Real Number- LOL)

My original social security card has printed (IN BOLD LETTERS) right on the card "NOT FOR IDENTIFICATION", yet the same federal government that printed up that notice, uses my social security number for identification (as well as everybody else, public and private).

We are taught to be free, and then encouraged to become indebted to a student loan provider, and get enslaved in a job. There is NOTHING FREE or liberating about that.
